WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt today was sentenced to a minimum of 2½ years in prison and a fine $10,000 while five other of the conspirators received much lighter sentences.

The government recommended leniency in the cases of James W. McCord Jr. and four Miami men. McCord was the first of the Watergate conspirators to begin cooperating with the government's investigations into the scandal, and the four Miamians participated in the Watergate break-in out of a sense of misguided patriotism, the government said.

McCord, who has served several months in jail and is currently free on bail, was sentenced to a term of one to five years in prison with no fine. U.S. District Court Judge Sirica said he has ten days to appeal his conviction and may remain free on bond for 15 days, or possibly longer if he does choose to appeal.

Bernard L. Barker, the Miami real estate man who recruited three Central Intelligence Agency associates for the Watergate break-in, received the longer sentence of 1½ to 6 years.

The three others, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez, received sentences of from one to four years, which Sirica said was "the lowest minimum" he could give under the circumstances.

Sirica sentenced Hunt to a term of 2½ to eight years in prison on two of the six counts on which he was convicted. He received lesser terms on the other counts with the sentences to run concurrently.

The seventh Watergate conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy, is appealing his wiretapping, burglary and conspiracy conviction and was not among those sentenced today.

Barker's daughter, Maria Elena Moffett, angrily attacked the sentence as being unfair.

"Some one has to go to jail," she said, "so they send this man, a punk, for Mitchell, Magruder and ultimately the President of the United States."

Barker and the three other Miami

men already have served more than 11 months in prison.

Martinez made an impassioned plea to the federal judge, calling himself a soldier in the service of his country.

"I was working here to help my country," said the Cuban-born Martinez in a heavily accented voice that was near breaking. "I'm in jail. I don't have my family. I'm surrounded by strangers."

The government, too, urged leniency, saying that the four men were "at the bottom of the totem pole" of the entire Watergate conspiracy and that perhaps they acted out of misguided loyalty.

Sentencing was imposed in the same federal courtroom where James W. McCord Jr. stood trial and E. Howard Hunt and the four others pleaded guilty in the Watergate trial nine months ago — a time when prosecutors still insisted that political espionage reached no higher.

The group's leader, G. Gordon Liddy, was convicted with McCord and was sentenced to a minimum 6 years, 8 months in federal prison. He rejected Sirica's order to talk to a grand jury — with immunity — and is serving an additional jail term for contempt.

McCord, 53, was security coordinator for the Committee for the Re-election of the President. He was convicted of eight counts of conspiracy, burglary, possession of wiretap equipment and bugging.

Hunt, 54, like McCord a CIA agent for two decades, and then a member of the White House "plumbers" group, pleaded guilty to six counts.

Slayer of 8 found guilty

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Edmund Emil Kemper III, who said he acted out homicidal, cannibalistic and sexual fantasies in the killing of eight women, has been found sane and guilty of first-degree murder.

The 6-foot-9 Kemper, clad in an orange jail jumpsuit and with his wrists manacled, heard the verdict Thursday without showing emotion. The jury of six men and six women deliberated five hours over two days following a three-week trial.

Kemper, 25, had pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity in the eight killings.

GM asks hike in car prices

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has asked the Cost of Living Council for permission to raise its prices to dealers an average $150 for 1974 vehicles.

GM said Thursday that current costs actually justify an average increase of $208 per vehicle but the company is asking only $150 because it is willing to absorb a portion of the cost increases.

GM was given a $73 price increase when its 1974 model vehicles were introduced in September but said that hike, amounting to 1.5 per cent, fell far short.

'Tapes mystery' explanation promised by Nixon attorney

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential lawyer has promised an explanation of the latest White House tapes mystery: How a recorder set automatically for midnight could begin recording out of turn in the middle of the afternoon.

The promised explanation by White House lawyer J. Fred Buzhardt could clear up what a Watergate prosecutor has called a substantial inconsistency.

According to testimony and documents presented in U.S. District Court Thursday, a tape recorder in the basement of the Executive Office Building must have switched on between 4:35 p.m. and 4:55 p.m. last April 16.

This appears to contradict earlier White House testimony that the machine wasn't set to come on automatically until around midnight, possibly later.

The tape recorder is the same machine that, on the previous day, April 15, supposedly ran out of tape and failed to record a key conversation between President Nixon and his ousted special counsel, John W. Dean III.

Newly named presidential trial lawyer Samuel J. Powers Jr. told newsmen that Buzhardt would clear up the puzzle of the out-of-turn recorder today. He was scheduled to testify after U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica's sentencing of the six original Watergate defendants.

The out-of-turn recorder surfaced Thursday as Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, revealed that not one but two tape recorders were operating on April 16.

She cited the two tape machines to explain why earlier she could not find an April 16 conversation between Nixon and Dean when she was in the process of transcribing the tapes.

According to her testimony, Dean's conversation had been recorded on a machine that came on automatically early in the morning of April 16. The tape she had been searching began with a recording of a conversation between Nixon and then-Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

The Dean meeting ended at 4:35 p.m., according to Nixon's official daily diary. The Rogers meeting began at 4:55. So, somehow, machines were switched hours before schedule, apparently by hand. Nobody before Miss Woods had mentioned any manual switching on April 16.

Hopes for permanent settlement mount

Pact brightens Mid-East

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government announced today Israel and Egypt have accepted a six-point agreement intended to pave the way for negotiations to reach a permanent settlement in the wartorn Middle East.

White House officials released the text of a letter from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim listing the six points and saying representatives of the two countries would meet on Saturday to sign the agreement.

The six points do not include a reported Egyptian concession lifting the blockade of the Bab el Mandeb Straits on the Southern entrance to the Red Sea. This was included in the text of the agreement as disclosed by U.S. officials on Thursday as Kissinger wound up his whirlwind tour of five Arab countries.

The text of the agreement, as given in Kissinger's letter to Waldheim, included these points:

—Egypt and Israel agree to observe scrupulously the ceasefire called for by the U.N. Security Council.

—Both sides agree that discussions between them will begin immediately to settle the question of the return to the Oct. 22 positions in the framework of agreement on the disengagement and separation of forces under the auspices of the United Nations.

—The town of Suez will receive daily supplies of food, water and medicine. All wounded civilians in the town of Suez will be evacuated.

—There shall be no impediment to the movement of nonmilitary supplies to the East Bank.

—The Israeli checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez road will be replaced by U.N. checkpoints. At the Suezend of the road Israeli officers can participate

Two fugitives captured in mass slayings

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Two fugitives who gave up without a fight were in jail today, accused of nine slayings in California's latest mass murder and two deaths in Arizona. Authorities said they were checking reports of possible other victims in Denver and New York.

Willie Luther Steelman, 28, of Lodi, Calif., and Douglas Gretzler, 22, of New York state, were scheduled for arraignment in Stockton Municipal Court today on nine counts of murder.

They were booked late Thursday for investigation of murder in the execution-style slaying of nine persons, including two children, in the home of a grocery store owner in the nearby hamlet of Victor.

Steelman and Gretzler were tracked down Thursday in Sacramento, 50 miles to the north, after they registered at a hotel where a clerk recognized them from photos in a newspaper and tipped police.

Gretzler was arrested on a second floor hallway of the Clunie Hotel and 90 minutes later Steelman was flushed by a tear gas shell from a shabby apartment building 1½ miles away.

Top energy adviser looks to future

Gasoline rationing 'probable' by spring

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's top energy adviser says nationwide gasoline rationing probably will be imposed by next spring.

John A. Love, director of the Energy Policy Office, emphasized that the White House has not made any decision whether or not to order rationing for the first time since World War II.

But Love said in an interview Thursday his personal opinion was that gasoline rationing "will be pretty likely" by next spring, the start of vacation-recreation season when Americans do most of their driving.

If so, every vehicle owner can expect to be applying to a local rationing board, come next March or April, for tickets entitling him to purchase limit-with the U.N. to supervise the non-military nature of the cargo at the bank of the canal.

—As soon as the U.N. checkpoints are established on the Cairo-Seuz road, there will be an exchange of all POWs, including wounded."

Congress speeds action on Nixon energy proposal

make up the past month's loss of petroleum."

Nixon ordered an end to allnight floodlighting at the White House, thermostats were turned down to 68 degrees in the executive mansion and heat and lighting in other federal buildings were curtailed in a drive by the government to reduce its own energy use. A spokesman said the presidential jet airplane will fly slower to save fuel.

The President's message to Congress asking standby authority to impose fuel and gasoline rationing said petroleum supplies could fall as much as 17 per cent short of demand this winter.

However, Russell E. Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said Thursday that he doubted "that we can entirely avoid granting variances which may impinge upon primary standards."

Oil industry spokesmen and a leading environmentalist in Congress said Nixon's recommendations, including 50-mile-an-hour speed limits and a temporary letup on antipollution laws, will not be enough.

"No amount of cheerleading will provide an instant solution," Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of a House environment subcommittee, said.

Udall called for immediate rationing and new taxes to reduce energy consumption.

In New York, a spokesman for the Sun Oil Co. said Nixon's proposals "will still leave a shortage of a million barrels a day."

Exxon President Clifton C. Garvin Jr. maintained that, even if Nixon's proposals are all adopted, "There will still be a crunch. There's no way to make up the past month's loss of petroleum."

STUDENTS and parents should be aware that, in response to the President's request, the temperature of city school buildings will be kept at 70 degrees. . . . This is a reduction of 2-4 degrees in most cases. . . . Superintendent Edwin M. Nestor has suggested that elementary students bring sweaters to school. . . .

In order to further conserve fuel, evening activities at the schools will be held to a minimum, and the temperature of the buildings will be considerably reduced during off-school hours. . . .

He said the Cost of Living Council's prediction "demonstrates once again that neither industry nor the administration has any intention of halting exports despite the fact that oil which is leaving the United States could kill tens of thousands of Midwestern residents warm this winter."

The Cost of Living Council said neither the Interior Department nor the Treasury Department has been able to determine who made an August shipment to Europe. That shipment of 8.4 million gallons carried a price of $6.73 per barrel.

However, the study said, "1972 was a depressed year and the rise in 1973 appears to be a return to a historical export level."

Apparently the lure of big profits is persuading major oil companies to export desperately needed fuel oil despite the shortage, Aspin said. "It is nothing less than a total disregard for the welfare of the American consumer which leads to these tremendous exports of fuel oil during the shortage."

"Regardless of what happens in the Middle East," Love said referring to the Arab nations' denial of oil to friends of Israel, "I can't help but think that we are going to be in a worse position next year in relation to (gasoline) demands than we were this last year, by far."

Amish lovers die

WOOSTER, Ohio (AP)—An Amish couple who were to be married this month were killed when a tractor-trailer rig hit their horse-drawn buggy on U.S. 250 east of Mount Eaton late Thursday night.

The couple, Fannie Miller, 20, who lived near Mount Eaton, and Samuel Yoder, 20, of Maysville, had gone to Mount Eaton to get blood tests and were on their way home, the Ohio Highway Patrol reported.

Patrolmen said the horse also was killed and the buggy smashed.

Investment trust lawsuit claims $33,400 kickback

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Two trustees of a Cincinnati-based investment trust received a $33,400 kickback when the trust bought a motel, a $64 million stockholders lawsuit alleges.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Columbus, said James L. Ostrander and Clifford R. Grimm received $16,700 each through a third company for the purchase of the Holiday Inn at Mansfield, Ohio.

The allegation is one of several in the lawsuit, which describes alleged kickbacks, favoritism and uncollected loans through scheming of company officers.

The suit alleges the trusts were manipulated to the officers' benefit while the companies' assets were depleted.

Principal defendants in the case are Ohio Real Estate Investment Co. and Ohio Real Estate Equities Co., both investment trusts, and the U.S. Capital Corp.

In the Mansfield motel sale, the suit alleged, the sellers hired Financial Management Corp. (FMC) as investment consultants to handle the sale to OREIC.

FMC is a wholly-owned subsidiary of U.S. Capital, in which Ostrander and former trustee Lawrence W. Dunning owned individually 36.6 per cent of the stock, the suit said.

FMC received a $65,000 fee for the motel sale, the suit said, and paid Ostrander and Grimm $33,400.

The trust also purchased Roselawn Shopping Center in Cincinnati. The sellers paid FMC $25,000, and FMC paid Ostrander and Grimm $8,000 each, the suit said.

Woodside Manor Nursing Home was bought by OREIC from Capital Development Corp. (CDC), another U.S. Capital subsidiary, the suit said.

Bought for $338,000, the improved property was sold to the trust for $1.25 million, the suit said.

The federal suit also listed alleged examples of large loans made by the trust to firms in which trustees had an interest, with no effort made to collect on the loans.

It also said trust property was leased to companies in which officers held an interest, with little effort to collect rent.

Compromise could unclog campaign finance impasse

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A surprise compromise gesture by Republicans could bring a break in deadlocked legislative negotiations on a new campaign financing law for Ohio.

It came Thursday at a Senate-House conference committee meeting with Democrats set to assail GOP members for rejecting limits on political party spending and contributions.

The Republican conferees announced they are ready to agree on "reasonable" limits on party spending and also for a ceiling on contributions made to political parties.

Democrats, who had not expected to be up to the political action committees of unions and other organizations which would have no spending limits if their funds were derived from contributions of $10 or less from individuals.

Until now, the Democrats have been able to buttress their position with a charge that the ill advocated by Republicans would place no limits on the amounts wealthy contributors could give to a political party.

However, a string was attached to the GOP offer.

Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, a conferee on the six-member committee, said the offer was made in the expectation that Democrats would in return change their position against a GOP "freedom of choice" amendment involving union campaign contributions.

"That's the crux of the whole matter," Norris asserted.

He then asked the Democratic conferees, who balked, if their position was "non-negotiable." Sen. Marogene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, said it was not, but at the same time defended her party's position with regard to labor unions. In response to another question,

For example, the suit said, a tract was leased by OREIC to Rex's Bull Run Inc., a Cincinnati restaurant in which Ostrander held an interest.

As of June 30, the suit said, the restaurant was 22 months delinquent in its rent.

Interests in the investment trusts were being sold by Provident Securities, another U.S. Capital subsidiary, the suit said.

Plaintiff stockholders said Provident promised them a seven per cent return on their investment. They said the brokerage house said their interests would be repurchased if they weren't satisfied.

The suit said some dividends were paid, but they were out of capital, not profit. The firms refused to repurchase their interests, the suit said.

Provident's brokerage license was suspended by the Ohio Commerce Department on Oct. 29.

The plaintiffs, two couples and two individuals who own a total of $181,000 in trust units and stock in the three principal defendant firms, filed the suit as a class action for 6,000 investors.

The suit asks for $64 million in actual and punitive damages from 31 companies and individuals named as defendants.

Four state officials are among the defendants, accused of not properly policing the investment trust or brokerage firm.

Named were Dennis Shaul, director of the Ohio Commerce Department; William L. Case III, securities division director, and Veronica M. Dever and Eric Christopherson, employees in the two offices.

Shaul could not be reached for comment.

Case said the allegations were unfounded.

"I think our enforcement action in this particular case was timely," Case said. "I think we have acted responsibly."

He said the department acted as best it could with its limited resources.

Plaintiffs in the case are Gene E. and Mary E. Devoe of South Vienna, Clark County; Chester W. and Ruby F. Webb of Wilmington; Harry H. McQuigg of Zanesville and Theron Richards of Bay Village.

It also said trust property was leased to companies in which officers held an interest, with little effort to collect rent.

The Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clouds and scattered snow flurries are expected over the eastern sections of Ohio later today and Saturday. Other parts of the state can expect a breakup of the clouds tonight, bringing quick drops in temperatures, probably below 20 degrees.

Cold air has spread over the entire state and temperatures early Friday were in the upper 20s and lower 30s. Snow flurries were reported by several weather stations in the northern part of the state, while radar showed some flurries over southern counties, the National Weather Service said.

The morning weather map showed little change from Thursday night. A nearly stationary ridge of high pressure stretches from Canada through the Dakotas to east Texas. Cold air is pouring southeastward along the eastern edge of this high into the lower Great Lakes and Ohio.

Fair with moderating temperatures Sunday through Tuesday. Highs in the 40s Sunday, rising to the 50s by Tuesday. Lows in the 20s early Sunday and in the 30s early Tuesday.

Snow whitened sections of the northern Rockies and the region from the Great Lakes to the central Appalachians today.

Fog, rain and drizzle, some of it freezing, were the rule in parts of Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska and Montana.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., accumulated 8 inches of snow before dawn. Cold air blowing off lakes Erie and Ontario triggered snow squalls in western New York state, where a heavy-snow warning was issued.

A new storm system moved into the Pacific Northwest, pumping rain into Oregon and northwestern California. Gale warnings were posted from Point Arena, Calif., northward and wind gusts of up to 63 miles per hour lashed the southern Oregon coast.

The Southwest was fair and dry, but fog and drizzle dampened the Texas Panhandle. Fog also rolled over the Gulf coast as showers and thunderstorms rumbled inland.

Rain mixed with snow slushed into West Virginia and rain was scattered along the Atlantic coast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 3 at Williston, N.D., to 77 at Corpus Christi, Tex.

School lunches get extra federal aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has signed a bill increasing the federal share in school lunch programs from eight cents to 10 cents per lunch.

The federal payment for reduced-price and free lunches and breakfasts is also increased under the bill and families eligible for the program extended to those earning up to $7,200 a year.

Boyle leaves hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — W. A. "Tony" Boyle, recovering from a near fatal overdose of sleeping pills, is being allowed to leave the hospital for the first time to attend a twice postponed extradition hearing.

It was apparent that the GOP surprise was calculated as such and that the decision had the blessing of Republican state headquarters.

State GOP Chairman Kent B. McGough released a statement a short time after the meeting. He said Republicans are "always available for reasonable compromise on any significant matter."

McGough added: "The Republican party, while it believes everything should be done by all in these critical times to strengthen party organizations, is not opposed to reasonable party spending limitations."

The conference committee of three Republicans and three Democrats has been meeting most of this week in the midst of growing speculation that no bill will come out of the special legislative session called by Gilligan Oct. 23. There now seems to be some optimism.

Rep. Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, committee chairman, said late Thursday "the leaders are meeting. We're going to get together and come up with a bill."

However, others questioned whether an agreed bill can be written even if the union issue is resolved. All week, the committee has put aside difficult decisions needed for a bill that will get the job of controlling campaign finances effectively done.

Still unresolved are such questions as the members and functions of a state elections commission envisioned by both parties to help enforce campaign laws, the deadlines for the filing of financial statements and contributors' lists by candidates, and proposed campaign spending for various lower echelon public offices, among other more technical matters.

Those who have already registered, but have questions regarding their current draft status, should contact the local board office in Columbus or Charles H. 132½ E. Court St., the advisor to registrants in Fayette County . . .

I want to thank all of the people who voted for me or helped me in any way in my successful bid for Township Trustee.

Also a special thanks to James Baughn for his many years of service to the Township.

Sincerely,

Ronald J. Campbell

4-H Club advisers honored at dinner

The 173 volunteer advisers who make Fayette County's 81 4-H Clubs a vital part of community life were honored Thursday night at the 20th annual recognition banquet in the Mahan Building.

Topping the list of citations was a certificate presented to Lowell Woods who has been an adviser for 28 years. Thirteen others have donated 10 or more years of service to the youth movement which this year provided learning programs and inspiration to 1,224 boys and girls from farm, village and city families.

Miss Beatrice J. Cleveland, associate state 4-H leader who is stationed at Ohio State University, pointed out that the adult leaders "flip the switches" which turn on young people toward meeting, not necessarily perfection standards, but their full potentials as individuals.

She suggested that 4-H retain the time-tested essentials but that changes should be geared to a wider range of interests.

THE BANQUET was sponsored by the Fayette County Agricultural Society, the Federal Land Bank Association, the Production Credit Association, the Producers Livestock Association, the Junior Leadership Club and the Cooperative Extension Service of Ohio State University.

A special tribute was paid to the "key leaders" of the Fayette County movement who are Mrs. Ernest Jenks, Mrs. Donald Lange, Mrs. Virgil Hardman, Mrs. Robert Highfield, Mrs. Jack Merriman and Mrs. Edward Rea.

Announced as the 1973 "honor clubs" were the Ambitious Farmers (senior group), Blue Ribbon Champs, Country Cousins, Dignified Doers, Happy Homemakers, Jasper Top Notchers, Marion Marvels, Sewers Anonymous and the Triple R Rustlers.

The 1974 4-H Committee officers named in balloting at the close of the dinner will be Roger Donohoe, president; Jayne Lang, vice president; Phyllis Rea, secretary, and Penny Hardman, treasurer.

Toastmaster for the banquet was Scott Jenks, president of the Junior Leadership Club; Ron Warner, president of the 1973-74 Committee, spoke briefly about the year's accomplishments; Howard Ford, of the Production Credit Association, and Jack Sommers, county Extension Agent, 4-H, commented on the overall program, and Junior Leader David Hiser, paid the formal tribute to the honored guests. Deidre Lang gave the invocation.

ADVISERS for the 1973 4-H program, which involves 726 girls and 518 boys with a total of 1,681 projects, are:

The Saxbe nomination

Political life is full of surprises these days. The list of them is extended by President Nixon's choice of Sen. William B. Saxbe of Ohio to succeed Elliot L. Richardson as attorney general.

This was not a surprise in the sense that most observers expected the prize to go to someone else. For once the punch was accurately telegraphed: there was almost unanimity in the press that the outspoken Ohioan would be named, and he himself was hinting at this well before the announcement was made.

The element of surprise comes from Saxbe's record as something of Republican maverick, one who once remarked: "I never worry about Democrats. It's my fellow Republicans who usually have the knife out." More to the point in the present context, Senator Saxbe has from time to time taken potshots at President Nixon and various bigwigs in an administration he once called "one of the most inept in history."

Saxbe's disgruntlement extends to Congress. He has described it as being, for the most part, "a fraud on the American taxpayers," and not long ago announced that he would leave the Senate at the end of his first term. This jaundiced view of a

Congress with which the administration has been at odds may have endeared him to Mr. Nixon, but certainly that cannot be said of his salty remarks about blundering in the White House.

Still, there he stands: the President's choice for attorney general. His competence is not open to much question; he served longer than any other man as Ohio's attorney general before going to the Senate. But it is clear that Mr. Nixon is taking him, as Saxbe observed, "warts and all." Which may, come to think of it, be a shrewd political move under the circumstances.

Labor campaign money eyed

The conservatives, even those who had no love for Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Company, have been loud in their criticisms of the Watergate committee because of its selective treatment of such phenomena as bugging and campaign dirty tricks.

And at least five of Committee Chairman Sam Ervin's seven have been accused of wanting to "get Nixon" as the Democratic senators of yesteryear never did want to nail Lyndon Johnson for possible irregularities involved in his sponsorship of Bobby Baker. Ever since last August the committee has been told in no uncertain terms that it was trailing off into querulous and partisan futility, and that it was time to fold its tents and quietly steal away.

Now comes the big switch: the conservatives suddenly see a big reason for continuing Watergate until after the snow begins to fly. The liberals, on the other hand, are being prodded by Big Labor to get Sam Ervin to call off his dogs.

THE CHANGE in climate came when it became known that the committee was really serious about looking into labor's big money contributions in recent political campaigns. Sens. Howard Baker and Edward Gurney raised the point that it would be wholly inconsistent of the committee if it were to limit its investigation of the sources of big political money to the corporation fat cats.

Sam Ervin, being an old-fashioned liberal from the South, where Big Unionism has never been popular, went along with Baker and Gurney. The result was a stiff 15-point questionnaire that has gone out to 80 top union officials asking, under penalty of possible subpoena, just how much cash and man-hours the unions spent on the presidential election of 1972.

If Sam Ervin continues to play the unimimidated man, the questionnaire could really tip over the applecart. The list of questions is suavely prefaced with a request for "voluntary cooperation." But a covering letter warns against false statements, and suggests that if any one of the 80 officials fails to reply the committee might find it necessary to put him on the stand in order to "complete its work." If this is "voluntarism," then surely someone is rewriting the dictationary.

The questions themselves leave no room for wriggling. Full details have been requested of any union official "or spouse" who contributed a total of $500 or more to any political candidate, committee or party in connection with the 1972 campaign. The questionnaire does not permit any distinction between "action committees" and "education committees." The provision of goods and services, such as the assumption of printing bills and the supply of transportation to the polls, occupies as prominent a place in the questionnaire as money raised from dues, assessments or voluntary contributions.

Finally, there is a "shot in the dark" question that reads: "Do you have any other information or comments regarding fund-raising in connection with the 1972 presidential campaign?" If anyone says "no" to this, and it later develops that something has been held back, could this be the basis for a charge of perjury? Labor leaders know plenty; an honest answer to the request for "other information" would result in book-length reports.

THE QUESTIONNAIRE is now known throughout Washington as "Pandora's Box." If the Watergate committee counsel really follows up on the expected revelations about the soliciting of union contributions by politicians, AFL-CIO President George Meany may discover the meaning of the old Greek fable about "Pandora's jar of evil," which was opened just long enough to flood the world with misery and shut tight again before its last content, labelled Hope, had managed to emerge.

The Seay case, in which it has been alleged that the International Association of Machinists made political use of compulsory dues and agency fee money to help political candidates without reporting the expenditures, has already slipped from Pandora's Box.

How many more Seay cases remain in the Box is a question that Sam Ervin's committee, if it remains operative, should be able to answer before Christmas.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

Saturday, Nov. 10

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)

Routine matters may give most concern. Employ "tried and true" methods in areas where you must act but have little to go on for reference.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 20)

Stress team work now. Confer with knowledgeable heads; don't wait until you hit a snag. Use care in estimating values.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)

Don't become flustered over "cloudy" situations. Your good judgment should tell you how to cope. You can melt opposition with a sense of humor.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)

Fine solar influences now give you a fresh basis for estimating potentials in considering long-range programs. Do make the most of them!

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23)

There's much more to this day than may meet the casual eye. Search out the advantages for, even though some may be hidden, they can be happily far-reaching.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Some unexpected situations could throw you "off base," cause confusion or misunderstanding. Be alert. Also, avoid impulsiveness in word or action.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

There's a tendency now to reject good suggestions without thorough understanding. Consider carefully.

before saying "No." Don't "jump the gun," however.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

You may now have the opportunity to advance through a "different" idea. At least, draw up plans to project at the right moment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

You will have less opposition in certain areas than you expect. Take the bit by the teeth; put beliefs, intuitive ideas actively to work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

You may not be alert to certain trends, now aware of underground movement — may just be believing what you wish to. Think again!

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Stellar influences suggest a need for added vigor in your thrust forward, but be careful not to alienate associates. Tendencies toward overaggressiveness prevail.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Aspects mostly auspicious, but accuracy and forethought must spark all decisions, moves. Travel and outdoor interests especially favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a fine mind and unusual versatility. You are gentler than many others born under Scorpio and there is a strong vein of mysticism in your make-up; often, too, a sense of isolation within yourself — which you should strive to overcome. Unlike most others of your sign, you would probably not be happy in the business world but, if you were to conduct a commercial enterprise as a sideline, you could handle it profitably. You belong in the professional world and could especially succeed as a writer, poet, artist or actor.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

I would like to take this means of communication to congratulate the students of Washington High and Miami Trace High on their very fine performance last Friday evening.

The fine conduct which our students displayed should make all of us in Fayette County very proud.

The bands and choirs, working together, were as outstanding as our boys on the field.

I think as adults that we all can gain a real lesson in cooperation by having watched our youth working so well together.

Again, congratulations to both schools, students and faculty.

Miller offers bill to bar political dirt

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Clarence Miller, R-Ohio, has offered the first legislation since Watergate to outlaw political spying and dirty tricks in federal elections.

"Political espionage has no place in American politics," Miller said. "It is alien to our sense of fair play and serves only to undermine open and free elections."

He said his bill would make it a felony to conduct political spying, cover-up campaign dirty tricks or misuse campaign funds for these and other unlawful purposes.

Conviction would carry a fine of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment of up to 10 years for any of a number of offenses, he said.

Miller said his proposal deals with three problems growing out of the 1972 presidential campaign. The bill would:

— Prohibit any employee to provide any service to another candidate with the intent of interfering with his opponent's campaign.

— Bar the use of campaign funds for political dirty tricks, wiretapping, electronic surveillance, burglary and breaking and entering.

— Ban any employee or volunteer from deliberately concealing any violation of the law.

Markets get more cattle; prices down

WASHINGTON (AP) — More cattle are being brought to market for slaughter now than at any time this year, causing some price declines for producers, says the Agriculture Department.

Last week about 673,000 head were slaughtered under federal inspection, up from 609,000 a week ago and from 659,000 during the same period last year, according to an Agricultural Marketing Service report.

The larger sales helped push prices down, from a midweek average of $40.81 per hundredweight for slaughter steers the week before to $40.20 in the week that ended Nov. 3, the service reported.

According to livestock analysts, part of the larger market flow may be due to the sale of cattle held off the market by owners in September and early October.

The heavier sales apparently are continuing this week, one specialist said. Choice 900 to 1,100 pound steers at Omaha were $41.75 per hundredweight last Friday but had decreased to about $40.50 by midweek.

According to USDA records, the 673,000 head of cattle slaughtered last week were the most since September

Cattle company problems await court hearing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A hearing has been scheduled for Sept. 29 in federal bankruptcy court here on a complaint by several prominent Ohio investors that they were swindled by 41 cattle Co.

The firm, headquarters in Bainbridge, Ohio, has been ordered to submit to the court a plan for paying off the central Ohio businessmen.

The firm, which sought investments in a cattle breeding and feeding plan, has listed with the court debts of $1,399,038.40 and assets of $547,884.85. The investors complained to the court more than $250,000 was paid for veterinary services and management of cattle that didn't exist.

Supplies diminished and prices soared to record levels of more than $56 per hundredweight in mid-August.

After beef price ceilings — at retail and wholesale only — were lifted in early September, choice cattle initially dropped to around $38 per hundredweight before surging a bit and leveling off most of last month at around $42.

Bill to limit speed may reach Assembly floor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan will be asked to expand the agenda of the current special session of the General Assembly to include consideration of a bill to reduce speed limits on Ohio highways.

State Rep. James P. Celebrenze, D-4 Cleveland, said he will take the request in response to President Nixon's call for measures to conserve fuel.

The legislature was called into special session by Gilligan to act on a campaign financing bill. It cannot take up other matters without the governor's approval.

Celebrenze said a bill already before the House Transportation Committee, of which he is chairman, could be amended to reduce the speed limit on state highways to 55 miles per hour.

'Hotpants' one solution to office shivers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "All female employees will wear hotpants, which should generate a substantial amount of heat in the office."

That was one of the "rules" facetiously posted Thursday in the office of Clerk of Courts Francis X. McCormack following President Nixon's speech on the need to conserve energy.

"Match periods, rather than coffee breaks, will be held," another of the rules stated. "Every half hour employees will stand up and light a match to keep everyone warm."

And the list of regulations also stated:

"All hot news copy will be retained for a period of one hour before releasing to the news media."

Last show set tonight for 12 WSHS bandmen

The 12 seniors of the WSHS marching band will make their last appearance at a football game Friday night in the Gardner Park Stadium before the Lions meet the Indians from Hillsboro.

They will walk slowly through the band as it plays Auld Lang Syne. This is the ceremony which has been repeated year after year for more than 25 years.

The halftime show was written and will be directed by the seniors, director Charles Shaffer said. It will include numbers representing each of the three years of the WSHS Band. It will open with the fanfare and the "2,001 Space Odyssey" and then swing into "I'd Like To Teach the World To Sing" for the second year and close with "Stripper," which will feature the six majorettes and 25-girl drill team completing its first year under the direction of Miss Nancy Karaffa.

Following the game there will be a parade of the football squad and fans, led by the band, from the stadium to the Courthouse lawn for a rally and a few short talks by fans and probably some of the Lions. After the rally, the bus will take the players to the high school, where a dance will bring the evening to a close after the celebration marking the first undefeated season for the Blue Lion football team in 21 years.

Just what would happen to these plans if the Lions lost the last game of the season is too painful for their fans to even contemplate.

Crippled man, 56, is victim of snowball attack

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A 56-year-old crippled man collapsed and died under a snowball barrage by a several youths, police said.

Police said Manuel Reil, who had a history of heart trouble, was standing outside a supermarket Thursday night when the attack began.

Walking with the aid of a cane, he was trying to dodge the snowballs when he fell, witnesses told police.

The county coroner's office was investigating the incident to determine whether an autopsy should be held to determine the cause of death.

Police said no arrests had been made.

Ohio Power talks slated to resume

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Contract talks between Ohio Power Co. officials and representatives of striking union employees will resume here Nov. 19-20.

The strikers, who walked off the job July 1, are from International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers locals in Zanesville, Newark and Steubenville.

The two sides met last week, and later reported "considerable progress" had been made.

One driver forfeits bond in Muny Court

Municipal Judge Reed M. Winegardner had only one traffic case scheduled for hearing Thursday, and the person charged failed to appear.

Richard L. Speakman, 39, Columbus, forfeited $150 bond for leaving the scene of an accident.

Energy crisis solutions involve major problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists say most of the basic research for President Nixon's Project Independence is done. The challenge will be overcoming environmental and economic problems.

Ideas abound on how to meet Nixon's goal of U.S. energy self-sufficiency by 1980. The technology for converting coal to gas and liquid fuels and for harnessing atomic energy has been worked out.

But application of this technology on a broad scale has been prevented by the costs and environmental side effects.

Project Independence may require more national determination than it took during World War II to build an atom bomb or during the past decade to land men on the moon, scientists said.

"The reason is the enormous questions of implementation, raising huge amounts of capital to build facilities and insuring environmental and safety standards on a nationwide basis," said Dr. Paul Donovan, energy research and development chief at the National Science Foundation.

Little is known about the health effects of burning coal. Strip mining for coal also presents problems in reclaiming the land.

"It is fine to say we will strip mine the West to get the coal we need, but we don't have the knowledge how to restore the land. We must find out and soon," said Dr. Gordon J. F. McDonald of Dartmouth University.

First responses received in annual Seal campaign

After the first week of the annual Christmas Seal sale here, responses have been received from 610 individuals and places of business.

And of these, 573 contained contributions totaling $1,597.75. Letters of appeal, with Christmas Seals included, were sent to 6,266 people and firms.

The response to date is just about the same as it was for the first week last year, said Mrs. Robert Goodson, executive secretary of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association, which sponsors the sale.

During the 67 years since the Christmas Seal campaign was started, great strides have been made in the treatment of tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases, Mrs. Goodson emphasized, adding that there is still a need to continue the effort to wipe out these ailments. She said emphysema and chronic bronchitis are among the most prevalent diseases among persons receiving Social Security aid. Air pollution and smoking are the principal contributing causes, she said.

Contributions received by the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association support the tuberculin skin testing program, X-ray services, patient services, public and professional education, breathing therapy equipment for Memorial Hospital and the Health Department, nursing scholarships and research for prevention and cure.

Those who have not received the Christmas Seals may get them by calling her home or at the association office (335-6791 or 335-6480), Mrs. Goodson said.

New material on air pollution has been received at the association office and is available to the public, according to Mrs. George Finley, association president, who expressed the hope that "everyone will put the Christmas Seals on letters and packages regardless of the amount of the contribution to the campaign."

Mrs. Doris Douglas, R.N., county public health nurse, is now drafting a tuberculin skin testing schedule for the city and county schools.

Is the energy crisis real? woman feels she's been 'had'

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — Until she read the Thursday papers, Mrs. John Bowman was ready to lower the heat, stop using the dishwasher and shorten television watching hours — all in the name of saving energy.

Now, everything's staying the way it was.

"I feel like I've been had," Mrs. Bowman said Thursday after reading an Associated Press story out of Washington. The story said a Cost of Living Council study indicates oil exports this year will "drastically surpass 1972."

The Cost of Living Council study, done at the request of U.S. Rep. Les Aspin of Wisconsin, predicted that 53.3 million gallons of fuel oil will be exported during 1973, a 284 per cent increase over 1972.

"I just don't understand how he can go on like this when we need that fuel here," Mrs. Bowman said. "The heck with him."

The cash register was invented by James Ritty, a Dayton, Ohio saloonkeeper, to keep his bartenders honest.

Shaul ponders political race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dennis Shaul, 34-year-old state commerce director, may be leaning toward running a statewide political race in 1974 after all.

He recently told a group of university students that the possibility is about 50-50. Reportedly, Shaul is considering the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Earlier, the former Akron city councilman had all but ruled himself out as a 1974 candidate after a grand jury investigated accusations of bribery in his department.

Even though it led to no indictments, Shaul said the attendant publicity seriously damaged his political career.

Now that the controversy has cooled, the commerce director apparently is

Ohio Perspective

re-evaluating. He has until Feb. 6 to decide. That's the deadline for candidates for state office to file their petitions with the Secretary of State.

Rep. Gene Demaschroder, R-85 Fremont, has met television reporter Mike Wallace, pitched back answers to Wallace's questions and only CBS' program 60 Minutes will disclose who won.

Wallace visited the Statehouse to talk about Damschroder's drastic proposal to use sterilization to help curb welfare spending.

The segment including the interview is expected to be shown in the next month, Damschroder said.

The Fremont freshman legislator got nationwide publicity with his bills proposed to the last session of the 110th General Assembly under which the state could sterilize men who refused to support their children, and women who have more than two illegitimate children while receiving welfare support.

Damschroder said his mail about his proposal has been running 90 per cent favorable.

Rep. Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, fumed over the national attention. He pointed out that Damschroder's bills "were not even referred to a committee."

U.S. Sen. William B. Saxbe, blunt-talking Ohio Republican, has been considering writing a book on the presidency and the political power structure when he leaves Washington.

The Squire of Mechanicsburg scheduled that leave-taking at the end of 1974 when he decided not to run for re-election. It may be delayed by the attorney general's job in the Justice Department.

Saxbe has discussed the book with aides and friends. "It's just in the talking stage now, but he is seriously considering it," said an aide.

Two writers have approached Saxbe about doing his biography. No decision has been reached.

Tonight's game just formality for Lions

By MIKE FLYNN

Washington C.H.'s Blue Lions have been sitting uncomfortably behind three other South Central Ohio League toughies for the past four years, waiting like a bunch of starved vultures for a trip to the league chambers.

Well, crafty head coach Maurice Pfeifer's title-hungry Lions have already reached one of their most important pre-season dreams by locking an undisputed SCOL football championship regardless of the outcome in tonight's season finale.

WHAT'S MORE important are the lofty milestones unbeaten Washington C.H. team can reach when a rapidly-improved Hillsboro team comes calling for an 8 p.m. encounter at Gardner Park Stadium.

The game is just a mere formality for the Lions as far as the 46th SCOL pennant is concerned, but more is at stake.

Washington C.H., destined to capture mythical Associated Press and United Press International Class AA state crowns, can climax perhaps the finest football campaign in school history.

If that's not enough, Pfeifer's ninth Blue Lion team can become the winningest football squad in school history since the legendary 1952 Washington C.H. won only nine games. An undefeated campaign would put the Lions in the class of the renowned 1952 team and the 1971 Miami Trace squad as Fayette County's only perfect teams.

Hillsboro, coached by former Fayette Countian Mike Doyle, has won two of its last three games and will be gunning for its third win in 10 starts.

Miami Trace's Panthers, who have been bona fide challengers for the SCOL title three straight years, can end the season with a very respectable second place finish by beating an improved Madison Plains team on a SCOL road trip tonight.

The Panthers started the recent SCOL surge by capturing a SCOL championship in 1971 and ended the 1972 campaign in the second place finish.

Head coach Fred Zechman, completing his first autumn in the county, has done a fine patchwork job with the Panthers this year and Miami Trace will be shooting for its sixth win in the all-games ledger when they visit the unpredictable Golden Eagles. Madison Plains is fresh from an upset win over Wilmington and will be searching for its third win.

"One thing about John," said Bill "He'd try any damn thing once."

Bill, who operates a local car dealership, moved here from the Bench family's hometown of Binger, Okla.

Bench will sing eight songs and appear in a turn-of-the-century uniform to recite a special composition of "Casey at the Bat."

Instead of booming line drives to the far reaches of Riverfront Stadium, he'll be belting out "When You're Hot, You're Hot," "Bad, Bad Leroy Brown," "King of the Road" and other contemporary songs.

Bench said the thought of singing before a live audience has him concerned.

"I've had some second thoughts, but I think I've got some talent. I like music and maybe this will open some doors," he said.

"But I'm sure there will be those who will say 'stick to catching,'" laughed the two-time National League Most Valuable Player.

Bench sings tonight with Cincy Symphony

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Johnny Bench's career has been punctuated by one high note after another.

Tonight he hopes he doesn't hit a sour one.

The Cincinnati Reds catcher is making a guest singing appearance with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

Whether Bench will be a hit remains to be seen, but his older brother Bill is certain of one thing—he will be heard.

"He was the kid who stood up in the back of the school room when we sang and you could hear his voice above everyone else's," drawled his brother.

"He's always had big feet, big hands...and a big voice," laughed Bill.

A's pocket $24,000 for series win

NEW YORK (AP) — When the Oakland A's won the World Series in 1972, they pocketed about $20,000 apiece. For doing the same thing this year, they each came away with better than $24,000.

That's inflation for you.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn released the World Series shares Thursday with the A's victory over New York worth a record $24,760.87 per man and the losing Mets getting $14,960.18 apiece.

The biggest payoff pool in World Series history resulted from record attendances for the five-game National and American League playoffs as well as the Series. The combined total attendance was 643,641.

The total player purse was $1,992,461.17 with receipts for World Series and league championship series reaching $5,337,281.25. The commissioner's office and both league offices share in the receipts as well as the participating World Series clubs and the first three finishers in each of baseball's four divisions.

The three-year-old colt, nicknamed "Super Red" by his fans, made a final appearance before going to stud at Claiborne Farm in Kentucky.

Stoltz applauds Bucks

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Michigan State Coach Denny Stoltz has spotted a weakness in Ohio State, college football's No. 1 team that points its weapons at the Spartans Saturday in a Big Ten game.

"Sure, they have a weak spot," Stoltz said, "in parking the team bus."

The Buckeyes bid for their eighth straight overall and sixth in a row in the conference against the crippled Spartans, who lost three players for the season in a 21-0 victory over Wisconsin last week.

"We held the club together with scotch tape and bailing wire thus far and now we're in real physical trouble," the Michigan State coach said.

"Ohio State is unbelievably better on offense than they were a year ago," Stoltz said. "And a defense which has given up no more than seven points in any game does its own talking."

The Spartans are without regular quarterback Charley Baggett, regular offensive tackle Phil Smolinski and No. 2 center Charley Ane, all knocked out with knee injuries against the Badgers.

Meanwhile, Ohio State is in near perfect physical condition and the Buckeyes lead the nation in fewest points yielded (2.9) and top the Big Ten offense and defense.

Thus the oddsmakers have installed Ohio State a 30-point favorite, despite the fact Michigan State, 3-5 overall and 2-3 in the league, has upset the Buckeyes 17-10 and 19-12 in the last two seasons.

Stoltz said he would start Tyrone Willingham at quarterback in place of Baggett. Willingham is a 5-foot-8, 155-pound sophomore walk-on who sparked the Spartans to their last two touch-downs last week.

"He has poise and confidence," the Spartan mentor said. "He's probably the most knowledgeable about our system."

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes is wary of Michigan State's physicalness,

OHSAA avoids controversy in Cleveland area league

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio High School Athletic Association wants no part of a controversy over disbanding of a Cleveland area league filled with racial overtones.

East Cleveland Shaw, Shaker Heights and Cleveland University Heights, all with heavy black enrollments, charge they are being isolated when seven schools, mainly white, leave the Lake Erie League.

Euclid, Lakewood, Brush, Garfield Heights and three Parma schools, Senior, Valley Forge and Normandy, are leaving the league to join new alignments.

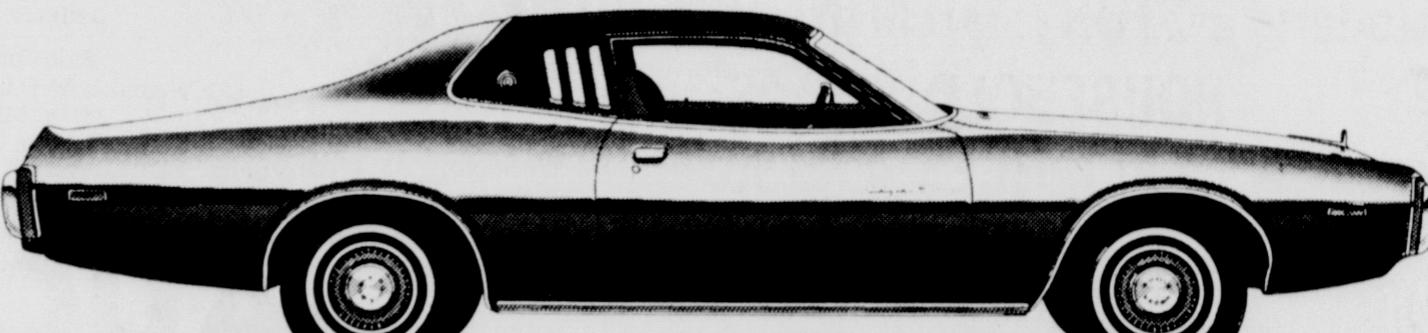

"We don't set up leagues," OHSAA Commissioner Harold Meyer said during the group's board of control especially on defense.

"You have to earn everything you get against them," Hayes said. "Their defense has been consistently good, even in the losses."

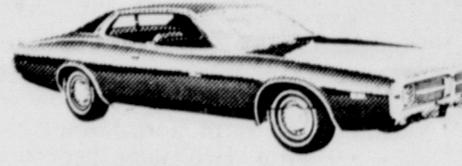

Wingback Brian Baschnagel and safety Rich Parsons are the only doubtful starters for the Buckeyes before another Ohio Stadium sellout of more than 87,000.

The Buckeyes need a victory to keep abreast of Michigan, tied for the Big Ten lead, before the two collide Nov. 24 at Ann Arbor.

This Driver Almost Died

I hope you can tell your readers of an experience I had recently that almost cost me and my family our lives.

We were driving home from a family dinner and suddenly my wife and I became terribly sleepy.

I found that my coordination was bad and had to control myself to stay on the road.

It was not until the next day that it was found that my car had a leak of carbon monoxide which was slowly seeping into the car from below the floor board.

I wonder if many unexplained accidents could be attributed to such defects?

Mr. J.S.T., N.C.

In Focus

by

Charlie Pensyl

NOTE: Marty Pensyl has taken over the In Focus column today.

About three weeks ago I first took out my new Honeywell Pentax ES. For about fifteen years I had been using the Leicas and considered Leica tops for both technical and fun photography. I had no idea photography had advanced so far in that fifteen years. This new Pentax ES is simply wonderful. After three or four shots with the normal 50mm lens the 135 mm, f-2.5 lens was affixed and it's still there. This 135mm Super-Multi-Coated lens is the greatest lens I ever looked through, or photographed through. The extra coating is obvious as soon as you look through it.

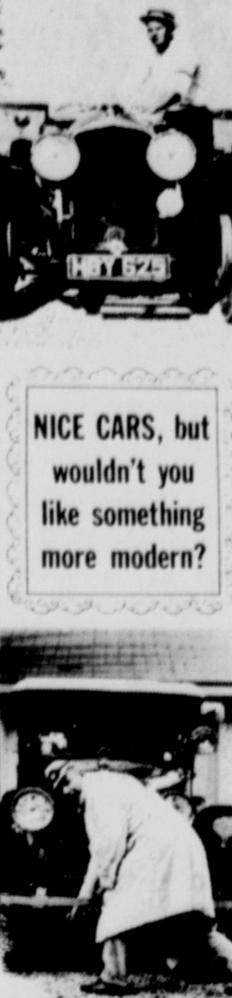

Fall colors this season left something to be desired. The panoramic views one would get with the normal lens could be dull, but with the 2 1/2 magnification one gains with the longer 135 lens it becomes easy to select just the tree, or the branch of the tree to include in the picture.

The 135mm length is also the choice for portraiture since it does minimize apparent perspective distortion. And it's not too heavy to hand hold.

Howard Miller has often said that he uses the 135mm f-2.5 more than any other lens. Now I know why. Howard got the first of the Super-Multi-Coated 135 lenses to come into the store. If I had known then what this lens was like, he would have had to grab the second one.

Being able to switch lenses, being able to select the proper length or lens type for the job — these are the advantages of the SLR system of photography. The freedom offered by a system camera is something you must experience to appreciate. The Honeywell Pentax is a lot of camera. It might just be the outfit for you. Come in and let me tell you about it.

JEFFERSONVILLE — The Village Council, at a special meeting Thursday night, accepted the sewage treatment plant as meeting requirements, but rejected the three segments of the sewer system until the contractors make the corrections to meet specifications.

Denison Bros., of Dayton, had the contract for the treatment plant.

Coates Brothers, also of Dayton, which had the contract for the sewer lines on the west side of town, said it would start Friday to make the required corrections and probably would have the work completed within a few days.

Contractor Services, of Cincinnati, which installed the sewer lines in the business section and east side of town, gave no indication as to when the work would be completed, but assured Council it would start without delay. The principal trouble came from infiltration of water, it was said.

The system was inspected by the village and FHA engineers and Lindy Sharrett, the village service director, during the past week.

At the special meeting Thursday night were the engineers, Harold McNally, of Schirzinger & Associates, a Chillicothe engineering firm representing the village, Sharrett, members of Council and a representative of the Farmers Home Administration (FHA), which provided a loan and grant for the project.

Meanwhile, the drilling of a fifth water well for the village is progressing. The decision to drill the fifth well was given impetus ax when the water supply from the present well dwindled to a trickle before it was cleaned of sediment.

The police were called for assistance.

However, Dr. Lester Adelson, deputy Cuyahoga County coroner, took the "who done it" out the discovery.

He said the bones weren't human bones but just "old soup bones carelessly tossed away."

Ohio education panel to study fuel shortages

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Guidelines for conserving fuel, including possible shutdown of schools during severe weather, will be reviewed at a Sunday meeting of the State Board of Education's special committee on the energy crisis.

The guidelines are expected to be presented to the state board at its meeting Monday.

The committee has been working on guidelines since its creation Oct. 15.

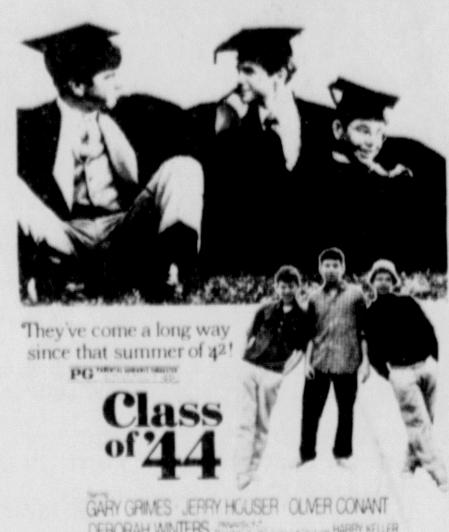

State school Supt. Martin Essex said the board can only request voluntary compliance with the guidelines. But if they are followed, he said, it is estimated that fuel consumption in Ohio's 5,000 school buildings could be reduced 30 per cent.

Concerning the closing of buildings, board President John Meckstroth said "discussions on this topic will explore the wisdom of recommending such a shutdown in mid-December and mid-January. Or, perhaps closing schools at the end of the semester in January and reopening on Presidents Day, Feb. 18."

Essex said his department is "preparing guidelines for a shutdown and securing of buildings during the period when schools may be closed."

Watergate conspirators sentenced to prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt today was sentenced to a minimum of 2½ years in prison and a fine $10,000 while five other of the conspirators received much lighter sentences.

The government recommended leniency in the cases of James W. McCord Jr. and four Miami men. McCord was the first of the Watergate conspirators to begin cooperating with the government's investigations into the scandal, and the four Miamians participated in the Watergate break-in out of a sense of misguided patriotism, the government said.

McCord, who has served several months in jail and is currently free on bail, was sentenced to a term of one to five years on prison with no fine. U.S. District Court Judge Sirica said he has ten days to appeal his conviction and may remain free on bond for 15 days, or possibly longer if he does choose to appeal.

Bernard L. Barker, the Miami real estate man who recruited three Central Intelligence Agency associates for the Watergate break-in, received the longer sentence of 1½ to 6 years.

The three others, Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez, received sentences of from one to four years, which Sirica said was "the lowest minimum" he could give under the circumstances.

Sirica sentenced Hunt to a term of 2½ to eight years in prison on two of the six counts on which he was convicted. He received lesser terms on the other counts with the sentences to run concurrently.

The seventh Watergate conspirator, G. Gordon Liddy, is appealing his wiretapping, burglary and conspiracy conviction and was not among those sentenced today.

Barker's daughter, Maria Elena Moffett, angrily attacked the sentence as being unfair.

"Some one has to go to jail," she said, "so they send this man, a punk, for Mitchell, Magruder and ultimately the President of the United States."

Barker and the three other Miami

men already have served more than 11 months in prison.

Martinez made an impassioned plea to the federal judge, calling himself a soldier in the service of his country.

"I was working here to help my country," said the Cuban-born Martinez in a heavily accented voice that was near breaking. "I'm in jail. I don't have my family. I'm surrounded by strangers."

The government, too, urged leniency, saying that the four men were "at the bottom of the totem pole" of the entire Watergate conspiracy and that perhaps they acted out of misguided loyalty.

Sentencing was imposed in the same federal courtroom where James W. McCord Jr. stood trial and E. Howard Hunt and the four others pleaded guilty in the Watergate trial nine months ago — a time when prosecutors still insisted that political espionage reached no higher.

The group's leader, G. Gordon Liddy, was convicted with McCord and was sentenced to a minimum 6 years, 8 months in federal prison. He rejected Sirica's order to talk to a grand jury — with immunity — and is serving an additional jail term for contempt.

McCord, 53, was security coordinator for the Committee for the Re-election of the President. He was convicted of eight counts of conspiracy, burglary, possession of wiretap equipment and bugging.

Hunt, 54, like McCord a CIA agent for two decades, and then a member of the White House "plumbers" group, pleaded guilty to six counts.

Slayer of 8 found guilty

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — Edmund Emil Kemper III, who said he acted out homicidal, cannibalistic and sexual fantasies in the killing of eight women, has been found sane and guilty of first-degree murder.

The 6-foot-9 Kemper, clad in an orange jail jumpsuit and with his wrists manacled, heard the verdict Thursday without showing emotion. The jury of six men and six women deliberated five hours over two days following a three-week trial.

Kemper, 25, had pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity in the eight killings.

GM asks hike in car prices

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has asked the Cost of Living Council for permission to raise its prices to dealers an average $150 for 1974 vehicles.

GM said Thursday that current costs actually justify an average increase of $200 per vehicle but the company is asking only $150 because it is willing to absorb a portion of the cost increases.

GM was given a $73 price increase when its 1974 model vehicles were introduced in September but said that hike, amounting to 1.5 per cent, fell far short.

'Tapes mystery' explanation promised by Nixon attorney

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential lawyer has promised an explanation of the latest White House tapes mystery: How a recorder set automatically for midnight could begin recording out of turn in the middle of the afternoon.

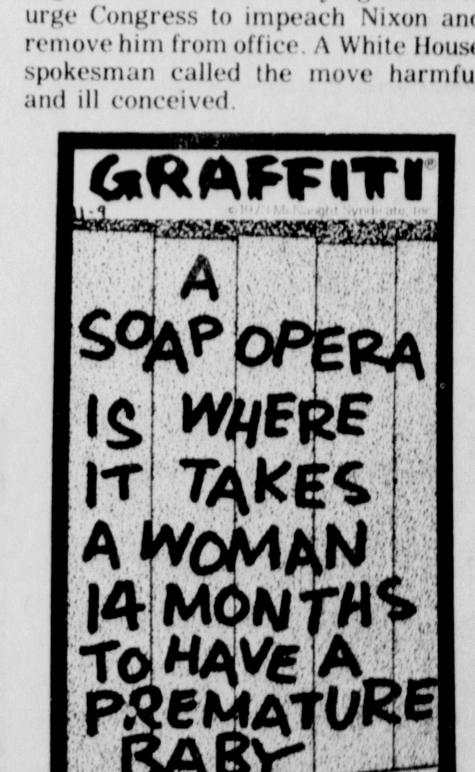

The White House says two subpoenaed conversations were never recorded. One is a telephone conversation between Nixon and campaign director John N. Mitchell June 20, 1972, just after the Watergate break-in. The other is the April 15 Nixon-Dean talk in the Executive Office Building.

The White House says an unattended tape recorder ran out of tape April 15 before Dean came in late at night. It was on the following day, according to the White House version, that the same recorder switched on in mid-afternoon with a full reel of tape that a Secret Service technician said was put on in the morning.

Other Watergate developments Thursday:

— Miss Woods testified that the quality of Watergate tapes is poor and she found them difficult to transcribe, but H.R. Haldeman, Nixon's former chief of staff, testified that two tapes he listened to in late April were understandable, despite their uneven quality.

The AFL-CIO announced it will begin a nationwide lobbying effort to urge Congress to impeach Nixon and remove him from office. A White House spokesman called the move harmful and ill conceived.

Hopes for permanent settlement mount

Pact brightens Mid-East

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government announced today Israel and Egypt have accepted a six-point agreement intended to pave the way for negotiations to reach a permanent settlement in the wartorn Middle East.

White House officials released the text of a letter from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim listing the six points and saying representatives of the two countries would meet on Saturday to sign the agreement.

The six points do not include a reported Egyptian concession lifting the blockade of the Bab el Mandeb Straits on the Southern entrance to the Red Sea. This was included in the text of the agreement as disclosed by U.S. officials on Thursday as Kissinger wound up his whirlwind tour of five Arab countries.

The text of the agreement, as given in Kissinger's letter to Waldheim, included these points:

— Egypt and Israel agree to observe scrupulously the ceasefire called for by the U.N. Security Council.

— Both sides agree that discussions between them will begin immediately to settle the question of the return to the Oct. 22 positions in the framework of the agreement on the disengagement and separation of forces under the auspices of the United Nations.

— The town of Suez will receive daily supplies of food, water and medicine. All wounded civilians in the town of Suez will be evacuated.

— There shall be no impediment to the movement of nonmilitary supplies to the East Bank.

— The Israeli checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez road will be replaced by U.N. checkpoints. At the Suez end of the road Israeli officers can participate

Two fugitives captured in mass slayings

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Two fugitives who gave up without a fight were in jail today, accused of nine slayings in California's latest mass murder and two deaths in Arizona. Authorities said they were checking reports of possible other victims in Denver and New York.

Willie Luther Steelman, 28, of Lodi, Calif., and Douglas Gretzler, 22, of New York state, were scheduled for arraignment in Stockton Municipal Court today on nine counts of murder.

They were booked late Thursday for investigation of murder in the execution-style slaying of nine persons, including two children, in the home of a grocery store owner in the nearby hamlet of Victor.

Steelman and Gretzler were tracked down Thursday in Sacramento, 50 miles to the north, after they registered at a hotel where a clerk recognized them from photos in a newspaper and tipped police.

Gretzler was arrested on a second floor hallway of the Clunie Hotel and 90 minutes later Steelman was flushed by a tear gas shell from a shabby apartment building 1½ miles away.

Top energy adviser looks to future

Gasoline rationing 'probable' by spring

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's top energy adviser says nationwide gasoline rationing probably will be imposed by next spring.

John A. Love, director of the Energy Policy Office, emphasized that the White House has not made any decision whether or not to order rationing for the first time since World War II.

But Love said in an interview Thursday his personal opinion was that gasoline rationing "will be pretty likely" by next spring, the start of the vacation-recreation season when Americans do most of their driving.

If so, every vehicle owner can expect to be applying to a local rationing board, come next March or April, for tickets entitling him to purchase limit-with the U.N. to supervise the non-military nature of the cargo at the bank of the canal.

— "As soon as the U.N. checkpoints are established on the Cairo-Seuz road, there will be an exchange of all POWs, including wounded."

Congress speeds action on Nixon energy proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has ordered fuel economies at the White House and has sent Congress his proposals to deal with an energy crisis he says is "closing upon us quickly."

In Congress, the Senate Interior Committee planned to begin voting today on a bill sponsored by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., which would give the President most of what he is asking.

But the Jackson bill would not permit the administration to suspend primary energy standards designed to protect public health and safety.

However, Russell E. Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said Thursday that he doubted "that we can entirely avoid granting variances which may impinge upon primary standards."

Oil industry spokesmen and a leading environmentalist in Congress said Nixon's recommendations, including 50-mile-an-hour speed limits and a temporary letup on antipollution laws, will not be enough.

"No amount of cheerleading will provide an instant solution," Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., chairman of a House environment subcommittee, said.

Udall called for immediate rationing and new taxes to reduce energy consumption.

In New York, a spokesman for the Sun Oil Co. said Nixon's proposals "will still leave a shortage of a million barrels a day."

Exxon President Clifton C. Garvin Jr. maintained that, even if Nixon's proposals are all adopted, "There will still be a crunch. There's no way to

Profit lure means loss of U.S. oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government report released Wednesday indicates that fuel oil exports in 1973 "will drastically surpass 1972" despite a serious shortage in this country.

A Cost of Living Council study requested by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., predicts that 53.3 million gallons of fuel oil will be exported during 1973, a 284 per cent increase over 1972.

However, the study said, "1972 was a depressed year and the rise in 1973 appears to be a return to a historical export level."

Apparently the lure of big profits is persuading major oil companies to export desperately needed fuel oil despite the shortage, Aspin said. "It is nothing less than a total disregard for the welfare of the American consumer

He said the Cost of Living Council's prediction "demonstrates once again that neither industry nor the administration has any intention of halting exports despite the fact that oil which is leaving the United States could keep tens of thousands of Midwestern residents warm this winter."

The Cost of Living Council said neither the Interior Department nor the Treasury Department has been able to determine who made an August shipment to Europe. That shipment of 8.4 million gallons carried a price of $6.73 per barrel.

That figure represents a 145 per cent increase in the average price per barrel last year, Aspin said.

Investment trust lawsuit claims $33,400 kickback

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Two trustees of a Cincinnati-based investment trust received a $33,400 kickback when the trust bought a motel, a $64 million stockholders lawsuit alleges.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in Columbus, said James L. Ostrander and Clifford R. Grimm received $16,700 each through a third company for the purchase of the Holiday Inn at Mansfield, Ohio.

Plaintiff stockholders said Provident promised them a seven per cent return on their investment. They said the brokerage house said their interests would be repurchased if they weren't satisfied.

The suit alleges the trusts were manipulated to the officers' benefit while the companies' assets were depleted.

Principal defendants in the case are Ohio Real Estate Investment Co. and Ohio Real Estate Equities Co., both investment trusts, and the U.S. Capital Corp.

In the Mansfield motel sale, the suit alleged, the sellers hired Financial Management Corp. (FMC) as investment consultants to handle the sale to OREIC.

FMC is a wholly-owned subsidiary of U.S. Capital, in which Ostrander and former trustee Lawrence W. Dunning owned individually 36.6 per cent of the stock, the suit said.

FMC received a $65,000 fee for the motel sale, the suit said, and paid Ostrander and Grimm $33,400.

The trust also purchased Roselawn Shopping Center in Cincinnati. The sellers paid FMC $25,000, and FMC paid Ostrander and Grimm $8,000 each, the suit said.

Woodside Manor Nursing Home was bought by OREIC from Capital Development Corp. (CDC), another U.S. Capital subsidiary, the suit said.

Bought for $338,000, the improved property was sold to the trust for $1.25 million, the suit said.

The federal suit also listed alleged examples of large loans made by the trust to firms in which trustees had an interest, with no effort made to collect on the loans.

It also said trust property was leased to companies in which officers held an interest, with little effort to collect rent.

Compromise could unclog campaign finance impasse

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A surprise compromise gesture by Republicans could bring a break in deadlocked legislative negotiations on a new campaign financing law for Ohio.

It came Thursday at a Senate-House conference committee meeting with Democrats set to assail GOP members for rejecting limits on political party spending and contributions.

The Republican conferees announced they are ready to agree on "reasonable" limits on party spending and also for a ceiling on contributions made to political parties.

Democrats, who had not expected to win the point so easily, moved quickly to adjourn the meeting without question to take the news downstairs to the office of Gov. John J. Gilligan.

However, a string was attached to the GOP offer.

Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, a conferee on the six-member committee, said the offer was made in the expectation that Democrats would in return change their position against a GOP "freedom of choice" amendment involving union campaign contributions. "That's the crux of the whole matter," Norris asserted.

He then asked the Democratic conferees, who balked, if their position was "non-negotiable." Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, said it was not, but at the same time defended her party's position with regard to labor unions. Shortly after that, the meeting broke up.

It was apparent that the GOP surprise was calculated as such and that the decision had the blessing of Republican state headquarters.

State GOP Chairman Kent B. McGough released a statement a short time after the meeting. He said Republicans are "always available for reasonable compromise on any significant matter."

McGough added: "The Republican party, while it believes everything should be done by all in these critical times to strengthen party organizations, is not opposed to reasonable party spending limitations."

The conference committee of three Republicans and three Democrats has been meeting most of this week in the midst of growing speculation that no bill will come out of the special legislative session called by Gilligan Oct. 23. There now seems to be some optimism.

Rep. Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, committee chairman, said late Thursday "the leaders are meeting. We're going to get together and come up with a bill."

However, others questioned whether an agreed bill can be written even if the union issue is resolved. All week, the committee has put aside difficult decisions needed for a bill that will get the job of controlling campaign finances effectively done.

Still unresolved are such questions as the members and functions of a state elections commission envisioned by both parties to help enforce campaign laws, the deadlines for the filing of financial statements and contributors' lists by candidates, and proposed campaign spending for various lower echelon public offices, among other technical matters.

Those who have already registered, but have questions regarding their current draft status, should contact the local board office in Columbus or Charles H. H. Court St., the advisor to registrants in Fayette County.

The Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clouds and scattered snow flurries are expected over the eastern sections of Ohio later today and Saturday. Other parts of the state can expect a breakup of the clouds tonight, bringing quick drops in temperatures, probably below 20 degrees.

Cold air has spread over the entire state and temperatures early Friday were in the upper 20s and lower 30s. Snow flurries were reported by several weather stations in the northern part of the state, while radar showed some flurries over southern counties, the National Weather Service said.

The morning weather map showed little change from Thursday night. A nearly stationary ridge of high pressure stretches from Canada through the Dakotas to east Texas. Cold air is pouring southeastward along the eastern edge of this high into the lower Great Lakes and Ohio.

Fair with moderating temperatures Sunday through Tuesday. Highs in the 40s Sunday, rising to the 50s by Tuesday. Lows in the 20s early Sunday and in the 30s early Tuesday.

More snow across U. S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow whitened sections of the northern Rockies and the region from the Great Lakes to the central Appalachians today.

Fog, rain and drizzle, some of it freezing, were the rule in parts of Kansas, Colorado, Nebraska and Montana.

Shall could not be reached for comment.

Case said the allegations were unfounded.

"I think our enforcement action in this particular case was timely," Case said. "I think we have acted responsibly."

He said the department acted as best it could with its limited resources.

Plaintiffs in the case are Gene E. and Mary E. Devoe of South Vienna, Clark County; Chester W. and Ruby F. Webb of Wilmington, Harry H. McQuigg of Zanesville and Theron Richards of Bay Village.

she said Democrats might be willing to consider a GOP proposal to limit the overall contributions of labor unions.

At issue in the conference committee talks, which resume at 2 p.m. today, is the GOP's insistence that individual members of unions be allowed to earmark their contributions to the party or candidates of their choice.

Democrats want these decisions left up to the political action committees of unions and other organizations which would have no spending limits if their funds were derived from contributions of $10 or less from individuals.

Until now, the Democrats have been able to buttress their position with a charge that the ill advocated by Republicans would place no limits on the amounts wealthy contributors could give to a political party.

"We're willing to discuss reasonable limits. Now, what are you going to give us?" "It's your turn to give," said Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, to the Democratic committee members. Shortly after that, the meeting broke up.

It was apparent that the GOP surprise was calculated as such and that the decision had the blessing of Republican state headquarters.

State GOP Chairman Kent B. McGough released a statement a short time after the meeting. He said Republicans are "always available for reasonable compromise on any significant matter."

4-H Club advisers honored at dinner

The 173 volunteer advisers who make Fayette County's 81 4-H Clubs a vital part of community life were honored Thursday night at the 20th annual recognition banquet in the Mahan Building.

Topping the list of citations was a certificate presented to Lowell Woods who has been an adviser for 28 years. Thirteen others have donated 10 or more years of service to the youth movement which this year provided learning programs and inspiration to 1,224 boys and girls from farm, village and city families.

Miss Beatrice Cleveland, associate state 4-H leader who is stationed at Ohio State University, pointed out that the adult leaders "flip the switches" which turn on young people toward meeting, not necessarily perfection standards, but their full potentials as individuals.

She suggested that 4-H retain the time-tested essentials but that changes should be geared to a wider range of interests.

THE BANQUET was sponsored by the Fayette County Agricultural Society, the Federal Land Bank Association, the Production Credit Association, the Producers' Livestock Association, the Junior Leadership Club and the Cooperative Extension Service of Ohio State University.

A special tribute was paid to the "key leaders" of the Fayette County movement who are Mrs. Ernest Jenks, Mrs. Donald Lange, Mrs. Virgil Hardman, Mrs. Robert Highfield, Mrs. Jack Merriman and Mrs. Edward Rea.

Announced as the 1973 "honor clubs" were the Ambitious Farmers (senior group), Blue Ribbon Champs, Country Cousins, Dignified Doers, Happy Homemakers, Jasper Top Notchers, Marion Marvels, Sewers Anonymous and the Triple R Rustlers.

The 1974 4-H Committee officers named in balloting at the close of the dinner will be Roger Donohoe, president; Jayne Lang, vice president; Phyllis Rea, secretary, and Penny Hardman, treasurer.

Toastmaster for the banquet was Scott Jenks, president of the Junior Leadership Club; Ron Warner, president of the 1973-74 Committee, spoke briefly about the year's accomplishments; Howard Ford, of the Production Credit Association, and Jack Sommers, county Extension Agent, 4-H, commented on the overall program, and Junior Leader David Hiser, paid the formal tribute to the honored guests. Deidre Lange gave the invocation.

Opinion And Comment

The Saxbe nomination

Political life is full of surprises these days. The list of them is extended by President Nixon's choice of Sen. William B. Saxbe of Ohio to succeed Elliot L. Richardson as attorney general.

This was not a surprise in the sense that most observers expected the prize to go to someone else. For once the punch was accurately telegraphed: there was almost unanimity in the press that the outspoken Ohioan would be named, and he himself was hinting at this well before the announcement was made.

The element of surprise comes from Saxbe's record as something of a Republican maverick, one who once remarked: "I never worry about Democrats. It's my fellow Republicans who usually have the knife out." More to the point in the present context, Senator Saxbe has from time to time taken potshots at President Nixon and various bigwigs in an administration he once called "one of the most inept in history."

Saxbe's disgruntlement extends to Congress. He has described it as being, for the most part, "a fraud on the American taxpayers," and not long ago announced that he would leave the Senate at the end of his first term. This jaundiced view of a

Congress with which the administration has been at odds may have endeared him to Mr. Nixon, but certainly that cannot be said of his salty remarks about blundering in the White House.

Still, there he stands: the President's choice for attorney general. His competence is not open to much question; he served longer than any other man as Ohio's attorney general before going to the Senate. But it is clear that Mr. Nixon is taking him, as Saxbe observed, "warts and all." Which may, come to think of it, be a shrewd political move under the circumstances.

Labor campaign money eyed

The conservatives, even those who had no love for Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Company, have been loud in their criticisms of the Watergate committee because of its selective treatment of such phenomena as bugging and campaign dirty tricks.

And at least five of Committee Chairman Sam Ervin's seven have been accused of wanting to "get Nixon" as the Democratic senators of yesteryear never did want to nail Lyndon Johnson for possible irregularities involved in his sponsorship of Bobby Baker. Ever since last August the committee has been told in no uncertain terms that it was trailing off into querulous and partisan futility, and that it was time to fold its tents and quietly steal away.

Now comes the big switch: the conservatives suddenly see a big reason for continuing Watergate until after the snow begins to fly. The liberals, on the other hand, are being prodded by Big Labor to get Sam Ervin to call off his dogs.

THE CHANGE in climate came when it became known that the committee was really serious about looking into labor's big money contributions in recent political campaigns. Sens. Howard Baker and Edward Gurney raised the point that it would be wholly inconsistent of the committee if it were to limit its investigation of the sources of big political money to the corporation fat cats.

Sam Ervin, being an old-fashioned liberal from the South, where Big Unionism has never been popular, went along with Baker and Gurney. The result was a stiff 15-point questionnaire that has gone out to 80 top union officials asking, under penalty of possible subpoena, just how much cash and man-hours the unions spent on the presidential election of 1972.

If Sam Ervin continues to play the unimimidated man, the questionnaire could really tip over the applecart. The list of questions is suavely prefaced with a request for "voluntary cooperation." But a covering letter warns against false statements, and suggests that if any one of the 80 officials fails to reply the committee might find it necessary to put him on the stand in order to "complete its work." If this is "voluntarism," then surely someone is rewriting the dictionary.

The questions themselves leave no room for wriggling. Full details have been requested of any union official "or spouse" who contributed a total of $500 or more to any political candidate, committee or party in connection with the 1972 campaign. The questionnaire does not permit any distinction between "action committees" and "education committees." The provision of goods and services, such as the assumption of printing bills and the supply of transportation to the polls, occupies as prominent a place in the questionnaire as money raised from dues, assessments or voluntary contributions.

Finally, there is a "shot in the dark" question that reads: "Do you have any other information or comments regarding fund-raising in connection with the 1972 presidential campaign?" If anyone says "no" to this, and it later develops that something has been held back, could this be the basis for a charge of perjury? Labor leaders know plenty; an honest answer to the request for "other information" would result in book-length reports.

THE QUESTIONNAIRE is now known throughout Washington as "Pandora's Box." If the Watergate committee counsel really follows up on the expected revelations about the soliciting of union contributions by politicians, AFL-CIO President George Meany may discover the meaning of the old Greek fable about "Pandora's jar of evil," which was opened just long enough to flood the world with misery and shut tight again before its last content, labelled Hope, had managed to emerge.

The Seay case, in which it has been alleged that the International Association of Machinists made political use of compulsory dues and agency fee money to help political candidates without reporting the expenditures, has already slipped from Pandora's Box.

How many more Seay cases remain in the box is a question that Sam Ervin's committee, if it remains operative, should be able to answer before Christmas.

Miller offers bill to bar political dirt

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Rep. Clarence Miller, R-Ohio, has offered the first legislation since Watergate to outlaw political spying and dirty tricks in federal elections.

"Political espionage has no place in American politics," Miller said. "It is alien to our sense of fair play and serves only to undermine open and free elections."

He said his bill would make it a felony to conduct political spying, cover-up campaign dirty tricks or misuse campaign funds for these and other unlawful purposes.

Conviction would carry a fine of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment of up to 10 years for any of a number of offenses, he said.

Miller said his proposal deals with three problems growing out of the 1972 presidential campaign. The bill would:

— Prohibit any employee to provide any service to another candidate with the intent of interfering with his opponent's campaign.

— Bar the use of campaign funds for political dirty tricks, wiretapping, electronic surveillance, burglary and breaking and entering.

— Ban any employee or volunteer from deliberately concealing any violation of the law.

A pearl beaded scalloped lace trim combined with accordian pleated ruffling trimmed the front of the gown giving a pinafore effect. Lace ruffles also edged the round neckline, the sleeves and the chapel length detachable train. A wide sash of white satin ended in a back bow and fell into long streamers. The three-tier elbow veil of illusion was topped by a camelot headpiece of sata-peau and lace. She carried a nosegay of white sweetheart roses, purple pompons, purple statice and baby's breath.

Each carried a nosegay of purple asters and white pompons encircling white sweetheart roses set off by purple statice and violet streamers.

Roger E. Kirkpatrick of Washington C.H. served as best man. The groomsmen were John C. Waddle, Sabina, brother of the groom, Jeffrey Munn of Newbury, Bruce M. ## Markets get more cattle; prices down

WASHINGTON (AP) — More cattle are being brought to market for slaughter now than at any time this year, causing some price declines for producers, says the Agriculture Department.

Last week about 673,000 head were slaughtered under federal inspection, up from 609,000 a week ago and from 659,000 during the same period last year, according to an Agricultural Marketing Service report.

The larger sales helped push prices down, from a midwest average of $40.81 per hundredweight for slaughter steers the week before to $40.20 in the week that ended Nov. 3, the service reported.

According to livestock analysts, part of the larger market flow may be due to the sale of cattle held off the market by owners in September and early October.

The heavier sales apparently are continuing this week, one specialist said. Choice 900 to 1,100 pound steers at Omaha were $41.75 per hundredweight last Friday but had decreased to about $40.50 by midweek.

According to USDA records, the 673,000 head of cattle slaughtered last week were the most since September

Cattle company problems await court hearing

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A hearing has been scheduled for Sept. 29 in federal bankruptcy court here on a complaint by several prominent Ohio investors that they were swindled by 41 Cattle Co.

The firm, headquarters in Bainbridge, Ohio, has been ordered to submit to the court a plan for paying off the central Ohio business.

The firm, which sought investments in a cattle breeding and feeding plan, has listed with the court debts of $1,399,038.40 and assets of $547,884.85.

The investors complained to the court more than $250,000 was paid for feed, veterinary services and management of cattle that didn't exist.

Bill to limit speed may reach Assembly floor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John Gilligan will be asked to expand the agenda of the current special session of the General Assembly to include consideration of a bill to reduce speed limits on Ohio highways.

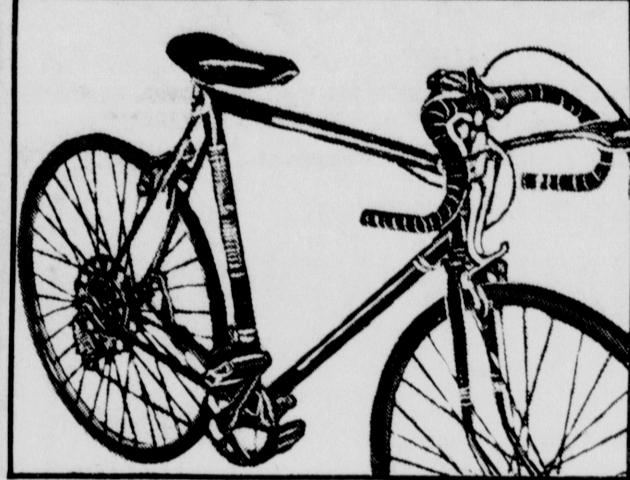

State Rep. James P. Celebrezze, D-4 Cleveland, said he will make the request in response to President Nixon's call for measures to conserve fuel.

The legislature was called into special session by Gilligan to act on a campaign financing bill. It cannot take up other matters without the governor's approval.

Celebrezze said a bill already before the House Transportation Committee, of which he is chairman, could be amended to reduce the speed limit on state highways to 55 miles per hour.

Last show set tonight for 12 WSHS bandmen

MILWAUKEE (AP) — "All female employees will wear hotpants, which should generate a substantial amount of heat in the office."

That was one of the "rules" officially posted Thursday in the office of Clerk of Courts Francis X. McCormack following President Nixon's speech on the need to conserve energy.

"Match periods, rather than coffee breaks, will be held," another of the rules stated. "Every half hour employee will stand up and light a match to keep everyone warm."

And the list of regulations also stated:

"All hot news copy will be retained for a period of one hour before releasing to the news media."

The 12 seniors of the WSHS marching band will make their last appearance at a football game Friday night in the Gardner Park Stadium before the Lions meet the Indians from Hillsboro.

They will walk slowly through the traditional hour glass formed by the band as it plays "Auld Lang Syne." This is the ceremony which has been repeated year after year for more than 25 years.

The halftime show was written and will be directed by the seniors, director Charles Shaffer said. It will include numbers representing each of the three years of the WSHS Band. It will open with the fanfare and the "2,001 Space Odyssey" and then swing into "I'd Like To Teach the World To Sing" for the second year and close with "Stripper," which will feature the six majorettes and 25-girl drill team completing its first year under the direction of Miss Nancy Karaffa.

Following the game there will be a parade of the football squad and fans, led by the band, from the stadium to the Courthouse lawn for a rally and a few short talks by fans and probably some of the Lions. After the rally, the bus will take the players to the high school, where a dance will bring the evening to a close after the celebration marking the first undefeated season for the Blue Lion football team in 21 years.

Just what would happen to these plans if the Lions lost the last game of the season is too painful for their fans to even contemplate.

Crippled man, 56, is victim of snowball attack

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — A 56-year-old crippled man collapsed and died after a snowball barrage by a several youths, police said.

Police said Manuel Reil, who had a history of heart trouble, was standing outside a supermarket Thursday night when the attack began.

Walking with the aid of a cane, he was trying to dodge the snowballs when he fell, witnesses told police.

The county coroner's office was investigating the incident to determine whether an autopsy should be held to determine the cause of death.

Police said no arrests had been made.

Ohio Power talks slated to resume

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Contract talks between Ohio Power Co. officials and representatives of striking union employees will resume here Nov. 19-20.

The strikers, who walked off the job July 1, are from International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers locals in Zanesville, Newark and Steubenville.

The two sides met last week, and later reported "considerable progress" had been made.

Ideas abound on how to meet Nixon's goal of U.S. energy self-sufficiency by 1980. The technology for converting coal to gas and liquid fuels and for harnessing atomic energy has been worked out.

But application of this technology on a broad scale has been prevented by the costs and environmental side effects.

Project Independence may require more national determination than it took during World War II to build an atom bomb or during the past decade to land men on the moon, scientists said.

"The reason is the enormous questions of implementation, raising huge amounts of capital to build facilities and insuring environmental and safety standards on a nationwide basis," said Dr. Paul Donovan, energy research and development chief at the National Science Foundation.

First responses received in annual Seal campaign

After the first week of the annual Christmas Seal sale here, responses have been received from 610 individuals and places of business.

And of these, 573 contained contributions totaling $1,597.75. Letters of appeal, with Christmas Seals included, were sent to 6,266 people and firms.

The response to date is just about the same as it was for the first week last year, said Mrs. Robert Goodson, executive secretary of the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association, which sponsors the sale.

During the 67 years since the Christmas Seal campaign was started, great strides have been made in the treatment of tuberculosis and other respiratory diseases. Mrs. Goodson emphasized, adding that there is still a need to continue the effort to wipe out these ailments. She said emphysema and chronic bronchitis are among the most prevalent diseases among persons receiving Social Security aid. Air pollution and smoking are the principal contributing causes, she said.

Contributions received by the Fayette County Tuberculosis and Health Association support the tuberculin skin testing program, X-ray services, patient services, public and professional education, breathing therapy equipment for Memorial Hospital and the Health Department, nursing scholarships and research for prevention and cure.

Those who have not received the Christmas Seals may get them by calling her home or at the association office (335-6791 or 335-6480), Mrs. Goodson said.

New material on air pollution has been received at the association office and is available to the public, according to Mrs. George Finley, association president, who expressed the hope that "everyone will put the Christmas Seals on letters and packages regardless of the amount of the contribution to the campaign."

Mrs. Doris Douglas, R.N., county public health nurse, is now drafting a tuberculin skin testing schedule for the city and county schools.

Is the energy crisis real?

woman feels she's been 'had'

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — Until she read the Thursday papers, Mrs. John Bowman was ready to lower the heat, stop using the dishwasher and shorten television watching hours — all in the name of saving energy.

Now, everything's staying the way it was.

"I feel like I've been had," Mrs. Bowman said Thursday after reading an Associated Press story out of Washington. The story said a Cost of Living Council study indicates oil exports this year will "drastically surpass 1972."

"I decided I'd lower the furnace, that I didn't need to run the dishwasher or the electric can-opener. I have five kids, and I decided they didn't need the television. And I figured we'd buy them warmer clothes. But after reading that story, forget about it. This is the last straw."

The Cost of Living Council study, done at the request of U.S. Rep. Les Aspin of Wisconsin, predicted that 53.3 million gallons of fuel oil will be exported during 1973, a 284 per cent increase over 1972.

"I just don't understand how he can go and carry on like this when we need that fuel here," Mrs. Bowman said. "The heck with him."

The cash register was invented by James Ritty, a Dayton, Ohio saloonkeeper, to keep his bartenders honest.

"I was so mad when I read that story I couldn't see straight," she said.

Mrs. Bowman said President Nixon's Wednesday night speech on the fuel energy crisis, in which he asked Americans to lower their thermostats and try to conserve energy, touched her.

"For the first time in years, he really got to me," she said. "I thought, this at least we can do."

Shaul ponders political race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dennis Shaul, 34-year-old state commerce director, may be leaning toward running a statewide political race in 1974 after all.

He recently told a group of university students that the possibility is about 50-50. Reportedly, Shaul is considering the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Earlier, the former Akron city councilman had all but ruled himself out as a 1974 candidate after a grand jury investigated accusations of bribery in his department.

Even though it led to no indictments, Shaul said the attendant publicity seriously damaged his political career.

Now that the controversy has cooled, the commerce director apparently is re-evaluating. He has until Feb. 6 to decide. That's the deadline for candidates for state office to file their petitions with the Secretary of State.

Rep. Gene Demaschroder, R-85 Fremont, has met television reporter Mike Wallace, pitched back answers to Wallace's questions and only CBS' program 60 Minutes will disclose who won.

Wallace visited the Statehouse to talk about Demaschroder's drastic proposal to use sterilization to help curb welfare spending.

The segment including the interview is expected to be shown in the next month, Demaschroder said.

The Fremont freshman legislator got nationwide publicity with his bills proposed to the last session of the 110th General Assembly under which the state could sterilize men who refused to support their children, and women who have more than two illegitimate children while receiving welfare support.

Damschroder said his mail about his proposal has been running 90 per cent favorable.

Rep. Harry J. Lehman, D-16 Shaker Heights, fumed over the national attention. He pointed out that Demaschroder's bills "were not even referred to a committee."

Tonight's game just formality for Lions

By MIKE FLYNN

Washington C.H.'s Blue Lions have been sitting uncomfortably behind three other South Central Ohio League toughies for the past four years, waiting like a bunch of starved vultures for a trip to the league chambers.

Well, crafty head coach Maurice Pfeifer's title-hungry Lions have already reached one of their most important pre-season dreams by locking an undisputed SCOL football championship regardless of the outcome in tonight's season finale.

WHAT'S MORE important are the lofty milestones unbeaten Washington C.H. team can reach when a rapidly-improved Hillsboro team comes calling for an 8 p.m. encounter at Gardner Park Stadium.

The game is just a mere formality for the Lions as far as the 46th SCOL pennant is concerned, but more is at stake.

Washington C.H., destined to capture mythical Associated Press and United Press International Class AA state crowns, can climax perhaps the finest football campaign in school history.

If that's not enough, Pfeifer's ninth Blue Lion team can become the winningest football squad in school history since the legendary 1952 Washington C.H. won only nine games. An undefeated campaign would put the Lions in the class of the renowned 1952 team and the 1971 Miami Trace squad as Fayette County's only perfect teams.

Hillsboro, coached by former Fayette Countian Mike Doyle, has won two of its last three games and will be gunning for its third win in 10 starts.

Miami Trace's Panthers, who have been bona fide challengers for the SCOL title three straight years, can end the season with a very respectable second place finish by beating an improved Madison Plains team on a SCOL road trip tonight.

The Panthers started the recent SCOL surge by capturing a SCOL championship in 1971 and ended the 1972 campaign in the second place perch.

Head coach Fred Zechman, completing his first autumn in the county, has done a fine patchwork job with the Panthers this year and Miami Trace will be shooting for its sixth win in the all-games ledger when they visit the unpredictable Golden Eagles. Madison Plains is fresh from an upset win over Wilmington and will be searching for its third win.

ELSEWHERE in tonight's SCOL rumbles, Greenfield McClain, suffering its sixth straight losing season and hopelessly anchored in the SCOL doldrums again this year, will be entertaining Wilmington.

Rookie head coach Ron Wilt's Clinton Countians have been on sort of yo-yo since beating Miami Trace a few weeks ago. Wilmington is hoping for a second place deadlock with Miami Trace, but the Hurryin' Hurricane must get past Greenfield which earned its first win of the season last Friday. Wilmington is 5-4 on the season and Greenfield shows a 1-8 all-games tab.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Johnny Bench's career has been punctuated by one high note after another.

Tonight he hopes he doesn't hit a sour one.

Whether Bench will be a hit remains to be seen, but his older brother Bill is certain of one thing—he will be heard.

"He's always had big feet, big hands...and a big voice," laughed Bill,

A's pocket $24,000 for series win

NEW YORK (AP) — When the Oakland A's won the World Series in 1972, they pocketed about $20,000 apiece. For doing the same thing this year, they each came away with better than $24,000.

That's inflation for you.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn released the World Series shares Thursday with the A's victory over New York worth a record $24,760.87 per man and the losing Mets getting $14,960.18 apiece.

The biggest payoff pool in World Series history resulted from record attendances for the five-game National and American League playoffs as well as the Series. The combined total attendance was 643,641.

The total player purse was $1,992,461.17 with receipts for World Series and league championship series reaching $5,337,281.25. The commissioner's office and both league offices share in the receipts as well as the participating World Series clubs and the first three finishers in each of baseball's four divisions.

Buckeyes 17-10 and 19-12 in the last two seasons.

Stoltz said he would start Tyrone Willingham at quarterback in place of Baggett. Willingham is a 5-foot-8, 155-pound sophomore walk-on who sparked the Spartans to their last two touch-downs last week.

Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes is wary of Michigan State's physicalness, especially on defense.

"You have to earn everything you get against them," Hayes said. "Their defense has been consistently good, even in the losses."

Wingback Brian Baschnagel and safety Rich Parsons are the only doubtful starters for the Buckeyes before another Ohio Stadium sellout of more than 87,000.

The Buckeyes need a victory to keep abreast of Michigan, tied for the Big Ten lead, before the two collide Nov. 24 at Ann Arbor.

OHSAA avoids controversy in Cleveland area league

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio High School Athletic Association wants no part of a controversy over disbanding of a Cleveland area league filled with racial overtones.

East Cleveland Shaw, Shaker Heights and Cleveland University Heights, all with heavy black enrollments, charge they are being isolated when seven schools, mainly white, leave the Lake Erie League.

Euclid, Lakewood, Brush, Garfield Heights and three Parma schools, Senior, Valley Forge and Normandy, are leaving the league to join new alignments.

"We don't set up leagues," OHSAA Commissioner Harold Meyer said during the group's board of control meeting Thursday. "I think they are grasping at straws."

East Cleveland Shaw has threatened legal action and Meyer said, "I don't know what basis they would have for a suit. We have no authority as far as the OHSAA constitution is concerned."

The governing body of Ohio scholastic sports also faces possible lawsuits from Cincinnati Elder and Doug Roundhouse, a Lancaster Fisher basketball player.

Elder has hired an attorney to collect $550 from the OHSAA. The association said it withheld that amount from the team's state basketball bonus for alleged damage Elder students did to St. John Arena bleachers during the Ohio semifinals last spring.

Ohio grid card has title flavor

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Three of the nation's top 20 major college football teams play on Ohio turf Saturday in titlebearing Big Ten and Mid-American games.

Top-ranked Ohio State tries to keep step with Michigan, its fellow Big Ten coleader. The Buckeyes carry 7-0 overall and 5-0 league records into their Ohio Stadium game with Michigan State.

Meanwhile, No. 17 Miami visits No. 19 Kent State in the Mid-American title showdown. The winner also earns a berth in the Tangerine Bowl Dec. 22 at Orlando, Fla.

Miami can wrap up a 5-0 conference season with a victory. A Kent State triumph would assure the Golden Flashes of a certain title share. Kent still has a league game left at Toledo.

Wittenberg and Marietta, already in the Ohio Conference playoff game No. 17, close out OC play this week, seeking perfect divisional records.

Marietta shoots for a 4-0 record in the Blue Division at home against Muskingum. The Pioneers then serve as the hosts for the second OC championship game the following week.

Bluffton and host Wilmington play to see who remains in the Hoosier-Buckeye title picture. Hanover leads with a 5-1-0 record, defending champion.

Contract Bridge ♦ B. Jay Becker

Bidding Quiz

You are South and have the following hand:

♦AQ94 ♦AQ65 ♦KQJ83 ♣ —

1. The bidding has been:

South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass

What would you bid now?

2. West bids One Club, your partner passes, and East responds Two Clubs. What would you bid now?

3. The bidding has been:

South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
3 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass

What would you bid now?

* * *

1. Pass. You've told your story and there's nothing more to add. Certainly this is a fine hand and, on the face of it, a potential slam. But partner is obviously not of the same mind. True, his two club bid was constructive and showed reasonable values, but his reaction thereafter was all negative. He wants out, and there is no really good reason to overrule him. North probably has something like:

♦852 ♦K3 ♦74 ♦AQJ872

2. Three clubs. You could make a takeout double instead, but that would not pinpoint your hand nearly as well as an immediate cuebid. On the bidding to date, partner can't have much — but, with your 5-4-4-0 distribution, he doesn't need much to produce a game. Thus, he might have as little as:

and have a very good shot for ten tricks in hearts. The void-showing cuebid will, in many hands, enable your partner to judge how high to compete if the opponents persist in clubs.

3. Four hearts. It would be dangerous to go beyond four hearts, for partner is turning an absolutely deaf ear to your powerful bidding. North is probably looking at something like:

and is trying to get out from under. Your eyes tell you have an excellent hand with an enormous potential for slam, but your ears tell you that partner is not interested in going beyond game. Bridge is a partnership game and, if North says he has the wrong values facing yours, you should trust him by giving up on the slam.

This Driver Almost Died

I hope you can tell your readers of an experience I had recently that almost cost me and my family our lives.

We were driving home from a family dinner and suddenly my wife and I became terribly sleepy.

I found that my coordination was bad and had to control myself to stay on the road.

It was not until the next day that it was found that my car had a leak of carbon monoxide which was slowly seeping into the car from below the floor board.

I wonder if many unexplained accidents could be attributed to such defects?

Mr. J.S.T., N.C.

In Focus

by

Charlie Pensyl

NOTE: Marty Pensyl has taken over the In Focus column today.

About three weeks ago I first took out my new Honeywell Pentax ES. For about fifteen years I had been using the Leicas and considered Leica tops for both technical and fun photography. I had no idea photography had advanced so far in that fifteen years. This new Pentax ES is simply wonderful. After three or four shots with the normal 50mm lens the 135 mm, f-2.5 lens was affixed and it's still there. This 135mm Super-Multi-Coated lens is the greatest lens I ever looked through, or photographed through. The extra coating is obvious as soon as you look through it.

Fall colors this season left something to be desired. The panoramic views one would get with the normal lens could be dull, but with the 2½ magnification one gains with the longer 135 lens it becomes easy to select just the tree, or the branch of the tree to include in the picture.

The 135mm length is also the choice for portraiture since it does minimize apparent perspective distortion. And it's not too heavy to hand hold.

Howard Miller has often said that he uses the 135mm f-2.5 more than any other lens. Now I know why. Howard got the first of the Super-Multi-Coated 135 lenses to come into the store. If I had known then what this lens was like, he would have had to grab the second one.

Being able to switch lenses, being able to select the proper length or lens type for the job — these are the advantages of the SLR system of photography. The freedom offered by a system camera is something you must experience to appreciate. The Honeywell Pentax is a lot of camera. It might just be the outfit for you. Come in and let me tell you about it.

Dear Mr. T.:

I am grateful to you for sharing this experience with my readers. I am certain that your added warning will stimulate many drivers to check their automobiles for defective exhaust systems.

The threat of carbon monoxide poisoning demands all-year-round safety precautions. In cold weather, when cars are closed, this threat is considerably increased. In warm weather, windows are closed because of air-conditioning, and the carbon monoxide buildup can increase if there are any defects in the system.

Within the home, too, gas heaters may pour this hazardous gas into the lungs of unsuspecting victims.

Carbon monoxide is an odorless, tasteless gas that creeps up and does its damage before one is sufficiently aware to protect himself from the fumes of this treacherous poison.

It is not frequently suspected that an automobile driver can actually pick up the deadly exhaust from a car in front of him. Trailing a car too closely, especially in tunnels, can rather quickly build up carbon monoxide in your own car. The fan of a heater can "inhale" the carbon monoxide exhaust from the car in front of you.

All cars, especially the old ones, should be checked for carbon monoxide leaks.

An excellent rule of safety is to avoid driving for long periods of time with the windows closed. Even the slightest amount of ventilation can be the safety valve against this poisonous gas.

If, when driving, you develop an uncomfortable headache, dizziness or lightheadedness, get out of the car and inflate the lungs with fresh air.

Pounding of the heart and repeated yawning may be early symptoms of carbon monoxide intoxication.

Is there any one type of tranquilizer that is better than another?

Miss R.U., Vt.

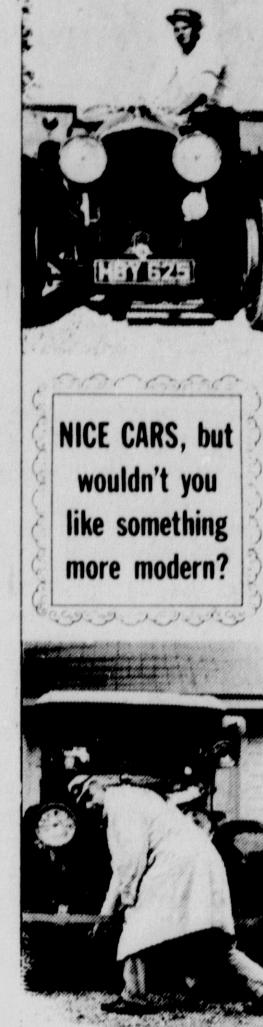

The choice of a tranquilizer, or a mood-elevating drug, must never be the decision of the patient. These drugs and psychic energizers are carefully chosen by doctors to fit the specific needs of each patient.

Unfortunately, many of these drugs, contrary to rigid laws, can still be illegally purchased. There is great hazard in being tempted to borrow or buy drugs without knowing their potential dangers.

Even when such drugs are prescribed they should be used only for the length of time specified by the doctor.

The division of watercraft of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources says boaters should be familiar with the different types of marker buoys found on Ohio streams to distinguish navigational hazards, identify off-limits areas and provide special instructions.

Jeff Council rejects three sewer segments

JEFFERSONVILLE — The Village Council, at a special meeting Thursday night, accepted the sewage treatment plant as meeting requirements, but rejected the three segments of the sewer system until the contractors make the corrections to meet specifications.

Dennison Bros., of Dayton, had the contract for the treatment plant.

Coates Brothers, also of Dayton, which had the contract for the sewer lines on the west side of town, said it would start Friday to make the required corrections and probably would have the work completed within a few days.

Contractor Services, of Cincinnati, which installed the sewer lines in the business section and east side of town, gave no indication as to when the work would be completed, but assured Council it would start without delay. The principal trouble came from infiltration of water, it was said.

The system was inspected by the village and FHA engineers and Lindy Sharrett, the village service director, during the past week.

At the special meeting Thursday night were the engineers, Harold McNally, of Schirzinger & Associates, a Chillicothe engineering firm representing the village, Sharrett, members of Council and a representative of the Farmers Home Administration (FHA), which provided a loan and grant for the project.

Meanwhile, the drilling of a fifth water well for the village is progressing. The decision to drill the fifth well was given impetus when the water supply from the present well dwindled to a trickle before it was cleaned of sediment.

Ohio education panel to study fuel shortages

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Guidelines for conserving fuel, including possible shutdown of schools during severe weather, will be reviewed at a Sunday meeting of the State Board of Education's special committee on the energy crisis.

The guidelines are expected to be presented to the state board at its meeting Monday.

The committee has been working on guidelines since its creation Oct. 15.

State school Supt. Martin Essex said the board can only request voluntary compliance with the guidelines. But if they are followed, he said, it is estimated that fuel consumption in Ohio's 5,000 school buildings could be reduced 30 per cent.

Concerning the closing of buildings, board President John Meckstroth said "discussions on this topic will explore the wisdom of recommending such a shutdown in mid-December and mid-January. Or, perhaps closing schools at the end of the semester in January and reopening on Presidents Day, Feb. 18."

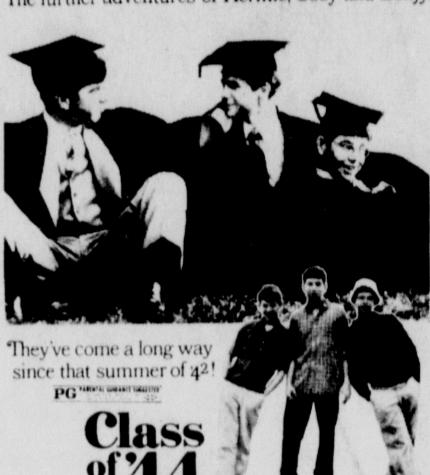

Essex said his department is "preparing guidelines for a shutdown and securing of buildings during the period when schools may be closed."

Seymour, 50, of 932 S. Hinde St., resulting in an accident at 3:20 p.m. Thursday. The Seymour vehicle pulled out to pass another vehicle at the same time and wound up sideswiping the Caliguri auto on U.S. 35, near Bush Road.

There was slight damage to both vehicles, but there were no injuries, according to the State Highway Patrol.
